IIL Celebrates International Project Management Day™ 2009 Honoring Project Managers Worldwide

IIL's live global webcast, "Achieving Sustainability in a Shifting Global Economy," features industry experts who will weigh in on critical issues facing project professionals today.

New York, NY – October 28, 2009 -- International Institute for Learning, Inc. (IIL), a global leader in professional training in the areas of Project, Program and Portfolio Management, Business Analysis, Microsoft® Office Project and Project Server, PRINCE2®, and Lean Six Sigma, will celebrate the sixth annual International Project Management Day™ on November 5, 2009 with a live global webcast, "Achieving Sustainability in a Shifting Global Economy."

Founded by Frank P. Saladis, PMP, in 2004, International Project Management Day (IPM Day) serves as an opportunity to increase awareness around the value of project management and to recognize the contributions of project managers worldwide. IPM Day continues to gain global recognition. This year, for the fourth year in a row, Mayor Michael R. Bloomberg issued a Proclamation, declaring November 5th Project Management Day throughout the City of New York.

IIL's live webcast will provide thousands of participants worldwide with the opportunity to create dialogue with industry experts and senior executives of global companies. Moderated by IPM Day founder Frank Saladis, the webcast program features speakers including: Gregory Balestrero, E. LaVerne Johnson and Dr. Harold Kerzner, as well as Bonnie Nixon (Environmental Sustainability Expert), Steven DelGrosso (Director of Project Management Center of Excellence, IBM) and David de Laire (CTO of wind energy pioneer Eolfi).

These speakers will explore the project management profession through the lens of global sustainability, examining the need to manage projects in a socially and environmentally responsible way.

"IPM Day provides us with a unique opportunity to honor today's project managers and the tremendous accomplishments they have made across business, industry, government and not-for-profit environments," said E. LaVerne Johnson, Founder, President and CEO of IIL. "This year's webcast will explore the project management profession through the lens of global sustainability, focusing in on the need to manage projects in a socially and environmentally responsible way."

In order to serve the needs of the global project management community, IIL is presenting two opportunities for attendance - on November 4 from 8:00 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. EST and on November 5 from 11:00 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. EST, enabling participants to choose the offering that works best for their local time zone. Attendees may register as an individual or as a corporate group.
